

WORKMEN FEAR NOT THE WOMAN.
In Spite of Commissioner Wright's Interesting Report.
WOMAN'S ABILITY LIMITED.
So Say the Leaders, and They Apprehend No Severe Competition.

THEY COULD BE ORGANIZED

But the General Opinion Is That the Field of Masculine and Feminine Industry Are Distinct.

The report of Commissioner Wright, of the Bureau of Labor at Washington, that women are rapidly driving out men in the labor field, is causing a good deal of discussion in the labor unions of this city. It has brought the subject in a light in which they have not seen it before, and measures are to be taken quickly to organize the working women in New York in a number of trades on an equal footing with men, so that they can demand and receive the same wages as men.

Even the greatest sticklers for old-time precedents have realized long ago that in most departments which women have invaded they have arrived to stay. Were it not that they are hindered by their weaker physique they would be invading nearly all trades.

The trades which women have invaded include shoemaking, bookbinding, printing, stenography, leather work of all kinds, upholstery, wood carving, lithographic drawing, designing, tailoring, weaving and a dozen and more of kindred trades. They have a practical monopoly in typewriting, and nearly a monopoly in telegraph and telephone offices. They are ousting the waiters in the lunch rooms, and women clerks and bookkeepers are rapidly taking the places of men. There are nearly as many women writers as men on the newspapers and as a rule they are better paid. There are as many lady reformers as men reformers in New York to make the city officials toe the mark, and women lawyers and professors are rapidly coming to the front.

Coming down to the humblest trades there are many new women as newsmen in and around Printing House Square and they are outstripping the boys. Their enterprise is greater, as they keep all the papers, while the boys, as a rule, keep only the most salable. Women are beginning to act as business agents for the sale of coal and wood, and as insurance agents, and are being sought after eagerly. Notwithstanding all this the labor leaders now say they are not at all alarmed.

Harry White, general secretary of the United Garment Workers, said yesterday: "There is no menace in the women invading so many trades. Those who say there is cry out before they are hurt. Matters are beginning to adjust themselves, and the men, who were formerly ascert as the men, are beginning to ask and receive as much pay as the men. In tailoring the natural process of civilization is to have the weaker sex do the lighter work. The East Side tailors women can do only the finishing and bushing, the other branches being too hard for them. Some trades, such as dressmaking, were formerly monopolized by girls. Now as many men as girls work at it. The cloakmaking trade, which was formerly monopolized by girls, now employs more men than girls.

If times were good and the country prospered and grew in a natural way there would be so many new trades that there would be work enough for all. The trades in which women have invaded are not new, but new trades in which women probably excel the men. In trades where they are competing with men they cannot do as much or as good work as the men, as a rule."

A member of the Shoe Lasters' Union said: "If this business depression was over we would be in a better position to predict the effect on men's wages of so many women taking to new occupations. In good times, through the natural process of civilization, there ought to be work enough to go round. There is no reason why women should be paid less than men for the same amount of work. No workman who is not a crank is against machinery. Labor-saving machinery displaces men at first, but it creates new trades. We believe that nothing can prevent women crowding into different trades, and if it could be prevented I don't believe it would be wise to do so."

"I see nothing to be alarmed about in the Commissioner's report," said a member of the Bricklayers' Union. "It is not the trades, but the events that women will invade the building trades. I believe, however, outside this there is nothing to be frightened at in the Commissioner's report. A woman, whether she is a new woman or not, is a woman. Men in normally good times ought not to be afraid of a woman. If it does come good luck to the women who are self-reliant enough to earn their own living. When the time comes when a woman no longer climbs on a chair at the sight of a mouse, man's occupation will be gone, but not until then. That time, I believe, will never come, or, if it does come, it will be a long time before it does. We are suffering from hard times now, not from woman competition."

RELICS OF C. COLUMBUS.
Remarkable Find, Which, If True, Should Net a Court Clerk Thousands of Dollars.

The Atlanta Constitution prints the following interesting but not necessarily truthful story: W. C. Zimmerman, Circuit Court clerk of Citrus County, and an archaeologist of note, has just reached this place from San Carlos, Bay Islands, south of Port Myers, where, with a number of friends, he has been camping and hunting. On one of the islands Zimmerman found the relics of a Spanish expedition sent out by Christopher Columbus from Cuba, when the great discoverer was governor of that island. While hunting the men passed a low mound, and at Zimmerman's request an investigation was made. After a little digging something was found, and when unearthed it was found to be a complete suit of armor. Further digging unearthed three more suits of armor. Zimmerman pried open the helmet of one of the armor suits and was shocked to see a skull. The entire suit was then opened, and was found to contain a skeleton. When the other suits of armor were opened they also contained skeletons. Four swords made in Toledo were also found. Zimmerman then unearthed a skeleton. When the other suits of armor were opened they also contained skeletons. Further digging brought to light an iron box filled with Spanish doubloons, mostly worth $200. A few hundred doubloons, encased in antique patterns, bearing the name of Sebastian Velasquez, and the date of 1604, were also unearthed. After digging for some time Zimmerman found a box which was unopened. It was a box of armor, the helmet of which was unearthed, which proved more interesting. In this box was found a portrait of a beautiful woman, painted on ivory, a medallion dated 1497, on which was the raised figure of Columbus, and a roll of parchment covered with writing. Zimmerman, who is a fine linguist, says that the parchment was a letter from Columbus to Velasquez, and related to an expedition which the latter was to lead from Cuba to explore the coasts of Florida. The letter was one of instruction, and was signed by Columbus as Governor of Cuba. Zimmerman thinks that the Velasquez expedition was wrecked near San Carlos, and the sailors, being afraid to venture inland because of the shoreless, settled on the island, where they remained till they perished. Zimmerman has with him the suits of armor, the parchment and other relics—Boston Transcript.

ARE THEY MIRACLES?
A Scientist Dumfounded at the Great Healer's Demonstrations. Tumors Disappear and Crippled Limbs Take On New Life! Weird Experience of a Noted Physician at Prof. Damon's Clinic!!!

The present day is one of sceptical inquiry. People do not rush in droves after any pretender, and follow him to the end without question as to methods or motives. Of course, the fools are not by any means all dead, and mankind is still as gullible as ever, but there is a spirit of scientific inquiry abroad, and the man who makes claim to any gift or qualification out of the ordinary must look for criticism of the most exhaustive and analytical kind. For several months, at frequent intervals, the Masonic Temple has been the scene of such proceedings as have set the people at large, even those of education and refinement, to wondering and guessing. The writer, whose experience in the field of psychology and abroad, has not been a restricted one, has been appealed to time and time again, and asked the question, "What do you think of Prof. Damon's work?"

Of what nature is the influence he exerts over the sufferers who resort to him for help? If you ask the Professor himself, he will tell you "magnetism," and he will be RIGHT in so answering. That there is such a manifestation of the great universal "force" is beyond all controversy. All men are capable of doing something in this line, but their capabilities vary. Prof. Damon, in the first place, possesses this "animal magnetism" in a degree far beyond the ordinary, and he has developed his powers by constantly exerting them for the benefit of his fellow-men. I am frequently asked, "How far hypnotism or suggestion is concerned in his marvelous cures?" I invariably answer, not at all. I have seen an organ in a state of advanced congestion treated for three minutes by Prof. Damon, have examined said organ after the "treatment," and found almost every evidence of a congested condition, which existed before, had entirely disappeared. I have seen the drawn, suffering countenance of the patient change to one of absolute relief and joy, and all that, as I have stated, in a period of three or four minutes. I have examined the patient two or three days subsequently and found that the relief continued. Now, what took place in that congested organ when Prof. Damon spent three minutes in manipulations over its locality? The congestion was at once relieved by setting free the engorged blood and restoring to the part its magnetic equilibrium. That is all that can be said of the matter to the general inquirer. To the scientific investigator, who, like myself, only desires to satisfy his own thirst for knowledge, let him look for himself, and believe the evidence of his own eyes. On the stage at the Masonic Temple, in the full light of day, I have seen case after case treated with success. Conclusion: some people cry. Well, if 2,000 people are bribed to accept that stage and simulate tumors, rotting, distorted limbs, etc., and Prof. Damon pays them, he would find no other use for his money. Seriously, the matter is beyond question, and any honest investigator can prove it to his own satisfaction. For MY own satisfaction, I went for information to parties that have been treated at the Temple, and who, in their own persons, bear witness to the efficacy of magnetism.

The first party of whom inquiry was made was John Tompkins. This man had not been outside the City of Hoboken in seven years. He had been a prisoner in his house for over seven years, suffering from rheumatism in its most aggravated form. He was assisted to the hall, which he reached with great difficulty, and when the proper time came he was invited upon the stage. Prof. Damon, in proceeding to give him a short treatment, lasting a few minutes. Placing one hand on the man's neck, about the base of the brain, he made some rapid strokes or passes about the head and forehead, and thence down the body and limbs. Suddenly ceasing this, he requested the patient to stand up and stamp his feet and walk about. The poor fellow's face was a study! He seemed for a moment bewildered. Then rising, he stamped his feet, shouldered his crutches and walked unaided from the stage upon which he had been lifted by the help of three of his friends. The audience rose, and for a few moments shouted and cheered! Ladies wept from sympathy, and, altogether, the scene was an unparalleled one. Right here Prof. Damon explained to the excited audience that this cure was no miracle, and that it is only occasionally that so much benefit accrues from a single treatment, all depending upon the various conditions and the nature of the case.

Mr. F. Fitch was the next case which I had an opportunity of personally inspecting. She had an immense goitre, involving the entire area beneath the chin, almost level with her ears. I SAW THAT GOITRE DISAPPEAR within a space of five minutes, beneath the manipulations of Prof. Damon. Little by little the tissues seemed to relax, and finally I was able to take up three or four inches of loose skin, the contents of the growth having disappeared! Where did they go? I cannot say, but evidently into the surrounding circulation. Of course, subsequent treatment would be necessary to carry off the effete matter from the system. As the Professor explained, few cases can be cured in one or two treatments, time and repeated magnetism treatments would be necessary. Most cases I also learned that Prof. Damon has been very successful in the treatment of alcoholism and drug addiction, having special facilities in his new Sanatorium, 30 and 32 West 27th Street. There is no suffering or sudden withdrawal of the accustomed habit, and the treatment is absolutely safe, as I have personally ascertained. Now, all this is known to me from continued personal investigation. I believe I understand fairly well the scientific rationale of the matter, but I would very much like an opinion from some brother physician who is interested in psychical research.
